Season of Gayety and Pursuit of Pleasure in Full Swing on the North Shore.

By a Staff Correspondent.
Magnolia, Mass., July 27.
THE dawn of the social season on the North Shore of Massachusetts is at hand, and from now on till the setting of its sun in September, gayety and the pursuit of pleasure will round out each day and night for the members of the summer colony scattered along its coast from Land's End to Montserrat.

The gay season usually begins about the latter part of July, rising to the zenith of its brilliancy in August, and this year promises to be like its predecessors. The horse show and gymnastics, which takes place the first week in August, will be the first big event of the season of 1907.

Baron Schlippenbach, the genial Russian consul general to Chicago, is visiting at the Russian Embassy here, this being his third summer at Magnolia. He, with M. Kroupensky, and M. de Thail, of the embassy, was among the guests at the Grill the other day. M. de Thail has quarters at the Essex Club, and comes from Mantes-la-Jolie in his speedy bullet-runnable, while M. Kroupensky, is at the Sign of the Dolphin, which Mrs. Selfridge, widow of Capt. Selfridge, is again running successfully for the second season as a tea house.

The Russian Ambassador, Baron Rosen, by the way, has but lately returned from a yachting trip on which Mr. John Hays Hammond, of South African fame, was host.

Mr. Hammond, who owns a most attractive summer home between Magnolia and Gloucester, has now gone on a business trip to the Cobalt fields in Canada. Mr. and Mrs. Hammond are to join the South African colony in Washington next season.

Other members of the diplomatic corps who are now comfortably situated in their summer quarters are the personnel of the Italian embassy, with Signor Montagna as charge d'affaires. Montagna and Signors Centaro and Cora were over for tea the other afternoon at the Grill, and were delighted at this new feature of shore life, and well they may be. No more attractive spot can be imagined than this artistic cottage, whose every adornment and appointment cater to the cultured and refined taste of those for whom it was designed, namely, the best people of the shore. As a result, it is more than popular and easily carries off the honors of being the center of the social life of the coast.

Here, every afternoon, one comes to see, "Who is who," for the elite are there, pretty women in dainty summer finery, with their attendant escorts, all laughing and chatting over "the cup that cheers" and nibbling fascinating little heart-shaped pepper sandwiches to the lilt of some Hungarian rhapsody.

One of the prettiest sights imaginable was the Teddy bear party held on the lawn of the Grill the other afternoon. "Papa Bear" and "Mamma Bear," and the "Baby Bear" were all represented, and so was "Golden Locks" and her little sisters of darker tresses, to say nothing of the little boys, who also brought their Teddy bears. All the youngsters in dainty lingerie gowns with a profusion of ribbon bows in pink and blue and yellow, each with a white Teddy bear equally adorned with its smashing big bow of gayly colored ribbon, made a picture to delight the eye of the artistic and warm the heart of the child lover. What a good time they had with their games and their refreshments. The little Misses Phoebe and Elizabeth Adams, and Master Harold Adams, of Washington, were among the small guests, and the ladies of the Capital interested were Mrs. T. De Witt Talma, Mrs. J. L. Pillsbury, wife of Capt. Pillsbury, of the navy; Mrs. George L. Andrews, Miss Florence Andrews, and Mrs. George Sutherland, wife of Senator Sutherland.

Mrs. Sutherland and her daughter are at the Ocean-side, and are among the most popular of the guests there. The other day Mrs. Sutherland entertained at luncheon, Miss Marjorie Cummins, of Brookline.

Mrs. William McAdoo and Mrs. Roosevelt, D. Hitchcock, of New York, were others entertained in the Teddy bear party. Mrs. McAdoo, whose husband preceded Col. Bingham as police commissioner of New York, and who is now assistant Secretary of the Navy, is here again for her third or fourth summer. She and her daughter, Miss Eva McAdoo, who visits Washington every season, are two of the most attractive women here.

Mr. Curtis Guild, Jr., the governor of Massachusetts, came down from Boston Thursday to lunch with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Guild, who are at the Ocean-side, as usual.

Mrs. F. C. Armstrong and Miss Ramsay, of Washington, were in an automobile party that lunched at the Ocean-side the other day.

Mrs. De Witt Talma and her daughter, Miss Rebecca Collier, are again at the Ocean-side, and of course, so are Mrs. George Whitfield Brown, her son, Mr. Cuthbert Brown, and Miss Errol Brown. Miss Collier looked very chic, the other afternoon, walking with Mr. Brown. She was wearing a smart white cloth suit, with a high collar, trimmed with pink ribbon and roses, and she carried a pink parasol.

Miss Brown was smartly gowned one morning this week in "old blue" colored linen, elaborately ornamented with Irish crochet. Her hat was trimmed with blue ribbon and guinea quills, and draped with a white applique lace veil.

Mr. L. C. Hanna, of Cleveland, Ohio, a brother of the late Senator Hanna, is with Mrs. Hanna and their son and daughter at the Ocean-side.

Mr. and Mrs. F. K. Barbour, of Washington, were here at the Hesperus House for a while, but have now gone on to Narragansett Pier.

Miss Grace Jarvis, granddaughter of Mrs. James McMillan, widow of the Senator from Michigan, who, with Miss Amy McMillan, but lately arrived from abroad at the beautiful summer home, Eagle Head, at Manchester, has met with a serious accident. While riding the other day, she suddenly fell from her horse. She struck her head on a stone, and was badly hurt. Her groom ran forward, of course, and raised her to her feet, whereupon she fainted, and it is thought by the family that she must have fainted while riding, and thus have fallen from her mount. She is now much better, but recovery is more or less slow, and it is feared that the summer season for her is spoiled. She and Miss Chew, of Washington, and Miss Rosamond Bradley were members of Mrs. William E. Page's whist classes at the Grill.

These bridge classes are, by the way, the most popular pursuit of the more seriously inclined of the matrons and having been a Miss Stewart, and the family are leaders in Chicago's most exclusive social set. Mr. Poe is the second son. He is prominently identified with the business, social, and club life of Washington, and is one of the most popular of the younger set in the Capital.

Mr. Robert Lee Keeling, of Washington and Baltimore, whose engagement to Mrs. John Howard Gray has recently been announced, was with Mrs. Gray, a dinner guest at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. Ledy, at their villa, at Narragansett Pier, Friday evening.

AT COLONIAL BEACH.

Colonial Beach, Va., July 27.

The New Willard Hotel at Colonial Beach has opened for the season. This building was built this spring.

The Wolcott House has been open for the past twenty-four years. This house is very popular with the Washington people. It is located directly on the water front.

Mrs. M. A. Bentley, proprietress of Bentley Hotel, has been at the Beach for four seasons and superintends all the cooking. Her seafood dinners are said to be very fine.

The Johnson House is under new management. Mrs. Louise Prince having secured a lease on it early in the season. It is a homelike place, directly on the beach, and has a reputation for fine meals.

Beautiful lawns and many rockers and hammocks surround the Waldorf Hotel. The hotel was formerly The Sherman, but is being conducted by Mrs. Mary E. Henry. It is beautifully located on Monroe Bay, and is noted for its fine seafood and chicken dinners.

The King George Hotel, at Colonial Beach, is open all year, and is conducted by Dr. F. F. Nide. The house is directly opposite the best bathing beach, and has fine bathrooms. The only drug store on the beach is under the hotel, and is owned by Dr. Nide. Dr. Newton Edwards, of Washington, is in charge.

The latter part of July, extending to a like period in August, usually marks the "top of the season" at Colonial Beach. This year will be no exception to the general rule, from present indications. The water-nymphs who daily vacillate between the silvery sands and the laughing billows give as much attention to their bathing costumes as is given to those wonderful creations of the artists in which they appear later in the evening on the board walk. Formerly an average lady was content with only one pretty bathing suit, in which she appeared each day during the season. Now their number is less, and their beauty is beyond description.

Among the Washington people now at Colonial Beach, are the following: "Bentley"—C. Widmeyer, Mrs. Herick and child, Mr. R. F. Whallen, J. H. Allan and wife, S. B. Maddox, John Jacobs, Randall Hotel—Dora Holzbeierlein, Henry Holzbeierlein, Willie Holzbeierlein, Masie Holzbeierlein, Minnie Hazelbush, Willie Hazelbush, Taylor Birch and wife, Miss J. R. Artz, Miss Grace Artz, A. F. Carman, H. C. Saffel and wife, W. O. Kanebush, King George House—F. A. McHugh, H. L. Viets and wife, C. A. Mayer and wife, J. E. Payne, Mr. Lang, H. G. Balkner, H. H. Balkner, L. G. Balkner, H. G. Allison and wife, Wm. Rogers and wife, A. A. Carpenter, Harry Tiffany, Miss M. E. Tiffany, The Linwood—Mrs. Elizabeth Porter, Miss Elizabeth Walton, Mrs. J. G. Weigel, Mr. and Mrs. William Ennis, Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Burton, Mr. Sullivan, Mr. McCarthy, Mr. Joseph Williams, of the Agricultural Department; Dr. H. A. Bradford, Steuart Cottage—T. J. McKelvie, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Goodrick, Mrs. E. W. Watkins, Mrs. Cussler, Mrs. Eisenbiers, Mrs. Walter.

The Colonial Beach Volunteer Fire Company entertained a goodly number of the guests of the town at a concert on the Randall pavilion on Tuesday evening, July 25. A most excellent vocal program was rendered by the choir from the Dumbarton M. E. Church, Georgetown. D. C. The program was composed of selections from "Queen Esther" and the performance was under the direction of Mr. W. L. Clover. A ball followed the concert, Professor Samuel's band furnishing the music for the dance. Mrs. Isaac Carr, of Washington, was the accompanist for the concert. One of the most attractive features of the concert was a vocal solo, "May Morning," by Miss Bessie Burch. Responding to a hearty encore, she favored the audience with the popular song "Sloop Johnnie." Mr. Glover, who is well known and popular at Colonial Beach, where he has summered his choir for a number of years, received many congratulations. The proceeds of the entertainment all went for the benefit of the Colonial Beach Fire Department, "Chief" Bailey and Prof. Wark, both of whom made pleasing addresses, were introduced by Dr. Nide.
